Permanent Link to Avera Launches RF Record & Playback with Real-Time GNSS Simulator

2021/07/28

Avera RP-6100 Series (PRNewsFoto/Avera). Avera has launched an RF tool offering high-performance record-and-playback and real-time simulation in one platform. The Avera RP-6100 series is a self-contained, record-and-playback solution for RF application validation. It can capture all GNSS bands, as well as HD Radio, Wi-Fi, LTE, radar, and cognitive radio — plus impairments — to significantly advance RF projects and harden product designs. The RP-6100 series features up to four channels, 160 MHz of recording bandwidth, tight channel synchronization, an extended frequency range of 10 MHz to 6 GHz, and 14-bit resolution. The RP-6100 can also be equipped with Skydel Solutions' software-defined, real-time GNSS simulator, which delivers easy setups, integrated maps, dynamic scenario creation, high precision and tight parameter controls to enable highly repeatable simulations of current and future GNSS conditions, as well as corner cases. Features include: Frequency range of 10-6000 MHz, covering all GNSS bands, plus HD Radio, WiFi, LTE, and more Multi-channel (1-4): Up to 160 MHz of bandwidth at 14-bit resolution (3.8 TB SSD storage or 16 TB HDD storage (for up to 22 hours of recordings) Preloaded with RF Studio software for quick setups and in-depth analysis Four models: RP-6120 (2 ch.), RP-6120P (2 ch. portable), RP-6120D (2 ch. desktop) and RP-6140 (4 ch.) Optional real-time Skydel GNSS Simulator for complete GNSS corner-case/testing scenarios "We are very excited to partner with Skydel Solutions as a way to continue to provide our customers with the latest technologies and products," said Benoit Richard, VP of Innovation & Strategy at Avera. "Their technology maps perfectly with our portfolio of RF instrumentation solutions, which empower device manufacturers to efficiently generate, record, simulate, analyze, and play back all common radio, video, and navigation signals, ensuring complete test coverage and the highest quality for their RF products." "Today, Skydel is proud to introduce its software-defined GNSS Simulator, running in real-time Ettus and NI USRP hardware," said Stéphane Hamel, co-founder and CEO of Skydel Solutions. "We are also very pleased to announce that our GNSS Simulator can be combined with Avera's RP-6100 Series. These technologies complement each other perfectly, making the combined solution the ideal platform for high-performance design validation of RF and GNSS devices."
